

Senso Systems – taking Home Entertainment to a new level

Senso can help you take the first step towards achieving your dream; anything from a fully integrated home entertainment system to a simply exceptional hi-fi system to a whole house control system.

Their team has countless years of experience in delivering custom installations and are there to guide you through the vast range of available products and ensure that your personal requirements are fulfilled within your individual budget.

Some of the applications you might consider are:

Music – Send music around your home at the touch of a button. Store all your favourite tracks on a hard drive and access them no matter which room you are in at the time.

Movies – Recreate the cinema experience in any room by utilising a flat panel screen or projector with multi-channel surround sound.

Lighting – Change the mood in an instant with controls in every room or even on your phone. Turn the whole house off when you leave or add optional automatic control of your curtains and blinds.

Design – To ensure a multi room installation integrates into your home, experienced installers work with interior designers and architects where necessary, to plan the best possible solution for you and your family.

Integration – Synchronise your home entertainment systems with other key systems and services allowing you to run your entire system from one central hub.

With more and more smart electronics playing a central role in our daily lives, they deserve an even smarter role at home. Senso Systems can make it possible for virtually any appliance or device in your home to communicate intelligently with another, from locks to lights and from doors to drapes, which will give you the ability to control them, no matter where you are. As much or as little as you require, we can help you achieve your aims.

Create the perfect movie ambiance in one touch. Tell your thermostat what to do from Thailand. Manage music in multiple rooms. Get a text when your teenager comes home. Senso Systems offers you flexible solutions to design the home automation system of your dreams on a very real budget.
